THE GLASS TRADE.

The Indications for the Fall-A Lively Demand Anticipated—General Notes.

now busily employed in storing away left over from the spring trade, they are now busily employed in storing away glass for the fall season. The demand during the summer months is usually rather light, and in accordance with this customary condition, but few straggling orders are coming in at the present time. The orders received just now are mainly for the purpose of filling up stocks of exhausted articles among the jobbers, and there has been an unusual demand for fruit jars, which leads us to believe that there will be more fruit put up this season than ever before in the history of the trade.

The beer bottle trade, which has been one of the steadily increasing branches, shows no falling off, and Milwaukee and Gincinnati bottlers have placed a number of large orders with factories in this city within the past two weeks. With regard to prices in table-ware and chimneys, the manufacturers do not express any optimions, but upon being pressed, it will be found that as a rule they anticipate an advance in prices this fall. There is but liberate will be reached no one seems at liberty to gay. The demand for the products of the glass factories is steadily increasing, year by year, and the manufacturers are not holding large stocks this season. The jobbers are pretty well sold out, and when the fall trade opens up fairly they will have to replenish their supplies. The advanced price of labor and the high quotations on the materials which enter into glass are still maintained, and an advance in prices, in order to allow the manufacturers a fait margin of profit, seems to be among the necessities of the trade. Many of our manufacturers have spent the summer shut down in getting out new designs and there is no doubt but what they will take well when the buyers begin to come into the city. Among the many uses to which glass can be put, one of the most unique has just come to the surface, and illustrates the saying of a prominent glass manufacturer that the day will come when dwelling houses will be made of glass. Messrs. Atterbury & Bros. have just think MEMPHIS, TENN., July 26.-The Chattaoogs, Tenn., Daily Times is a paper that uns with the hare and holds with the As for the "free ballot" and that sort of ant, freedom will come for the Southern egro, "in all that the word improved oon as he is fit for the exercise of complete citizenship, not before."

This is exactly equivalent to saying that This is exactly equivalent to saying that Sambo suffrage. Will be neutralized by the bullet or nullified by the ballot-box stuffer until the negro rises to the regnant plane of Caucasian civilization.

Yet the Times, in common with the whole conservative faction of the Democracy, declares, in harvest and out of harvest, that our party has Accepted the Amendments, And will never repeal those revolting measures—never, begod, sah!

It is this unprincipled class of cattle that has trailed the standard of Democracy in the dung for the sake of office and its honors.

trates the saying of a prominent glass manufacturer that the day will come when dwelling houses will be made of glass. Messrs. Atterbury & Bros. have just finished a large order for inside window shutters which have been made of opal glass and decorated. They present a beautiful appearance, and have the advantage of being readily cleaned. The order was a special one, and was made for a firm in one of the western towns in the State of New York.

Dabuque Herald.

A Dubuque gentleman took a fancy to a horse a few days ago and after some bantering succeeded in buying the animal. It was a saddle horse—a neat, firm one, thought to be just the thing. Our Dubuque friend started out to try the saddle qualities of his new purchase and came home convinced that the horse knew far more than he gave him credit for on short acquaintance. The first saloon he overtook on the road the horse wheeled up to and came to a halt. His rider urged him quietly, then a little more so, to proceed, but the animal couldn't see it. After coaxing him for some time in short sentences adorned with expressive expletives, thesalon keeper came out and observed: "You can't get that horse away until you let him see you take a glass of beer." As a final resort the beer was taken, when the horse went off as good-naturedly as if had just been wound up for an eight-day journey. But their very souls revolt/at the position in which they are placed.
And they have sworn in their hearts, by all they hold sacred, that they will undo the hell-work of Reconstruction and abrogate the amendments the very moment that the step becomes feasible.
That gay, old gillyllower, Thompson, who holds a portfolio in the Sx7 Cabinet up at Washington, had a fit of abdalle fanaticism the other day, and thereupon he made the following declaration:
"The right and privilege of every citizen to vote as he pleases in the coming contest will be secured, if necessary, by the exercise of all the power of the Administion, supported, if need be, by the army and navy."
Now if this rum old file means white was a saddle norse—a neat, firm one, thought to be just the thing. From all indications it would seem that the glass trade of this city will enter upon a very successful season this fall. All of the principal glass factories on the South Side have resumed operations during the past week, and inasmuch as the stoppage in a great measure contributed largely to reducing the stock on hand, which was left over from the spring trade, they are now busily employed in storing away to 45. 45.
